About Foursquare

Foursquare is the leading independent location technology and data cloud platform, dedicated to building meaningful bridges between digital spaces and physical places. Our proprietary technology unlocks the most accurate, trustworthy location data in the world, empowering businesses to answer key questions, uncover hidden insights, improve customer experiences, and achieve better business outcomes. A pioneer of the geo-location space, Foursquare's location tech stack is being utilized by our mobile apps CityGuide and Swarm, as well as the world's largest enterprises and most recognizable brands, like Amazon, Microsoft, Samsung, Spotify, Uber, Airbnb and others.

Foursquare's flexible building blocks include technology to maximize marketing impact and drive incremental real-world engagement (Attribution, Audience, Proximity, SDK); data to deeply understand points of interest and real-world behavior patterns (Places and Visits), and tools to conduct advanced analysis, data enrichment, unification and visualization (Studio).

About the Position

Foursquare is looking for Senior Security Engineers to join our team! While we would prefer candidates based in or around our office hubs in New York City, Chicago, Seattle, or San Francisco, we're also open to considering remote applicants for this role.

About the team:

The Security team works with infrastructure and feature engineering teams to identify and mitigate risks to the business. We propose, design, plan and implement strategic and tactical security improvements — from developing and deploying new Security tooling to performing

About the role:

As part of the Security Team, you'll lead efforts and implement solutions to keep our users' and customers' data private and our systems secure and you'll be involved in all functional areas of Security: engineering and development; advisory and consulting; and detection, alerting, and response. You will collaborate with key stakeholders to harden a complex multi-account AWS environment, as well as an expansive set of corporate systems. Your work will have a significant impact on the security of the entire organization.

In this role, you'll

- Build security tooling and automation using Infrastructure as Code and serverless frameworks

- Develop alerting and threat detection capabilities in both corporate and production environments

- Provide security expertise across our entire tech stack in the form of design reviews and threat modeling

- Respond to security events, including isolating, mitigating, and investigating active threats

- Advocate for the security culture of the organization, including collaborating with stakeholders across Infrastructure and Engineering teams

What you'll need

- Bachelor's Degree in Computer Science, Computer Engineering, or related field (such as other Engineering disciplines)

- 4+ years of experience in security engineering or DevSecOps, with a focus on AWS and infrastructure security

- Thorough understanding of secure development best practices

- Strong written and verbal communication skills with both technical and non-technical audiences

Proficient in building tools and automation in Python, including testing, documentation, and deployment

Experience with deploying in Kubernetes (EKS preferred); experience with Infrastructure as Code (Terraform) a plus

Your own unique talents! If you don't meet 100% of the qualifications outlined above, we encourage and welcome you to still apply!
